BABY AND PARENTS IN COUPE IN WILD DASH

Young Snow Shoe Family Escaped in Unusual Accident.

OVER MOUNTAINSIDE

Clair Smith, his wife and baby girl, Norma Elaine, young folks of Snow Shoe, had a most remarkable escape from injury in a near tragedy on last Friday evening about 9 o'clock. Their Ford coupe turned over three times as it went down the Snow Shoe mountain, at a steep place, and then stopped in a balanced position, while the Smiths carefully stepped to safety.

The baby, eight months old, was figuring in its first accident and perhaps it was the apparent luck that seems to go with child accidents, that kept all in the coupe from being hurt. Safe, so far as the little one knew, in its mother's arms, both actually escaped with never a scratch.

The young father, a miner in Kelly's No. 7 mine at Snow Shoe, did not get hurt in the accident, but sustained a cut on one hip when he pushed out one of the panes of glass as he steadily got onto his feet to get free from the dangerous position in which all were for an instant prisoners. Strange to note, Mr. Smith said, "That was the only damage done to the car.

"We were traveling toward home," he continued. "Going toward the sharp curve near the Furl place, I tried to drive as closely to the right as possible. In doing so, the front wheels got in a rut and the car shot up a slight embankment when I put on power to get out of the rut.

"We were not going fast and the car tilted over easily, turning over on its side three times and coming to a stop about 50 feet from where it left the road, taking a barb wire fence and posts with it. It rested in a sort of balance, so that we had to be careful in getting out of it. The mother and babe were not hurt in the least.

"So nicely was it balanced that it could be moved with a pressure of the hand. It was a close call but sure lucky for us that it stopped where it did.

"The long, steep open field at the curve would have offered nothing whatever to stop the car in its dash, had it turned over once more, and we would have all been killed, for it would have kept going for another 75 yards. The grade, too, is very steep. We were lucky, all right."

KIDDIES DAY SCHEDULE

Boys and Girls to Meet at Elks at 8:30 A. M. Next Thursday.

The Elks have practically all arrangements completed for the observance of Kiddies Day and Flag Day at Hecla next Thursday.

All boys and girls are to meet at the Elks home on High St. at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and will be taken to the park free, as announced last week. No announcement as yet has been made by the committee as to what trophy will be given this year, the idea being to have at least one part of the program an interesting mystery. But every boy and girl who is registered will get something special in addition to the free entertainment, eats and picnic.

Why the Men Were Laid Off.

There have been erroneous impressions circulating as to why workmen employed in construction work at Rockview were laid off last week. To get correct information, "The Republican" called Hon. John Francies, superintendent of construction at Rockview, and he made the following statement: "The fiscal year ended May 31st. and there were no funds available for further work as the new appropriation had not been made and approved and it will be impossible to proceed any further with the work until the appropriation is made and approved by the Governor." This fully explains why the men were not permitted to continue work. There are no funds to pay them.

Bellefonte Girl Wins Honors.

Johnson, of Bellefonte, who has completed a three years course in Dickinson Seminary in Williamsport, in two years, takes first honors in the English course and third in the class. Her numerous friends in Bellefonte and elsewhere are gratified to hear of her marked success.

JANE M'CLURE CLANEY KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Child of Bellefonte Woman is Victim of Tragedy.

COMING TO GRANDMA

Jane McClure Claney, 2 years old, daughter of Murnock A. and Mrs. Helen McClure Claney, was killed in an automobile accident near Cresson on Sunday.

The Claneys were coming to Bellefonte to visit the child's grandmother, Mrs. William McClure, of West Bishop St. Mr. and Mrs. Claney, the latter's sister, Miss Louise McClure, of Bellefonte, and the Claney's baby daughter, Nancy Patterson Claney, 9 months old, also were in the machine.

They were driving down a very dangerous hill, 6 miles long, on what is known as the Bickhorn road. Mr. Claney was driving and noticed that the car was racing beyond control. To avert a serious crash, he swerved it into the embankment.

All of the occupants were thrown out and the babe, tossed from its mother's arms, escaped. However, the mother was very painfully injured, but will likely recover. Miss McClure and Mr. Claney escaped unhurt.

Mrs. Claney's mother, Mrs. William McClure, and the former's sister, Miss Mary McClure, went to Pittsburgh, where the Claneys reside, on Monday morning, the occupants of the ill-fated car being taken to their home after the misfortune. Mr. and Mrs. Paul McGarvey motored to Pittsburgh on Sunday as soon as they received word of the accident. Burial of the child was made in Pittsburgh.

AUTO ACCIDENT AT COLLEGE

Two Cars Damaged in Collision; Occupants Injured.

On Sunday at noon at a street intersection near the Lawrence Woomer home, two cars figured in a collision and were considerably damaged, while some of the occupants were slightly injured.

The one car was owned by Michael Woomer, who is here from his home in Ohio, visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Woomer, of State College. He was taking his brother, Lawrence Woomer, and family, to the home of a sister, Mrs. Harry Coble, where they planned to enjoy Sunday dinner.

They had not gone far from home when the other car, owned and driven by Chas. J. Glunk, of State College, came in from a side street and a collision resulted.

Michael Woomer was hurt by being thrown against the steering wheel. Mrs. Lawrence Woomer was stunned and suffered from minor head injuries. Lawrence, Jr., three years old, was cut severely on the left temple and bled freely. Thomas Woomer, 8 months old, was made sore by the shaking up and shock, and two daughters, besides their father, Lawrence Woomer and Mrs. Michael Woomer, the other occupants of the car, sustained slight injuries.

Chas. J. Glunk, proprietor of the Fashion Shop in State College, had as guests his father-in-law and three students of the Pennsylvania State College. All were bruised some but not seriously injured.

FIRE PLACE COLLAPSED

Chas. R. Beatty's Son, "Junior," Painfully Injured.

Chas. R. Beatty, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Beatty, was very painfully injured, but not seriously, on Saturday evening, when the fire place in the dining room at the Beatty home on Curtin St., collapsed.

Several young men, beside Mr. Beatty's sister and mother, were in the room, but some distance from the fire place, when the bricks fell without warning. Chas. R., Jr., was struck on the limbs and in the pit of the stomach by several of the bricks. Altogether about a ton of the brick fell, so that it was a very narrow escape for the lad, who is recovering from the injuries received.

Harry Eberhart Injured.

Harry Eberhart, who has been employed at his trade as a carpenter, in erection work for the American Lime & Stone Co., was very painfully injured on Saturday, being struck on the head by an 18-inch bolt which seemed to have fallen from a beam above his head. It was feared he had sustained a fracture of the skull, but the injury was not so serious and he was permitted to leave the hospital on Monday, returning to his home.

LAD DROWNED IN POOL AT PARK NEAR COLLEGE

William Atlee Peters, 12 Years Old, Apparently Overcome.

HELP CAME TOO LATE

Very distressing was the first fatality of the swimming season, which occurred yesterday when William Atlee Peters, of Centre Furnace, was drowned in the swimming pool in the Evergreens Park, near State College, familiarly known to many as the Thompson place. Evidently life had just passed away before he was taken from the pool.

Mrs. T. Krebs, who resides in one side of the double house where the lad's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Peters, reside, was near the pool, accompanied by Mrs. M. M. Garver, wife of Prof. Garver, who conducts the park.

They heard the lad's muffled cries, not recognizing them as such for a few minutes, and at first paid no attention to them, "for," said Mrs. Krebs, "I was under the impression the lad could swim. He had been swimming before and seemed to get along all right. But this time he was in the pool alone. When the noise he was making was continued, I said to Mrs. Garver, 'Let us see if there is something wrong with Billy,' and then we went to the pool.

"He was drowning, as we quickly noted, and we stopped several cars and called for help, but it seemed nobody could swim and would not go into the pool. Finally, Prof. Garver, heard our cries and came. He is 75 years old and had been at his home, but on account of his age, we did not think of him as being able to rescue the lad. He went into the pool right away and brought Billy out and we worked over him for hours, but it was too late.

"His cheeks flushed at times and his eyes moved, so that we had hope right along that we could bring him back to life, but at 2 o'clock the effort was abandoned, it being hopeless."

The lad went into the pool alone. The spot where he was discovered struggling is about 9 feet deep, the deepest part of the pool which is about 25 by 35 feet in size. Whether the lad was seized with cramps or was unable to swim to safety on account of being overcome, could not be definitely learned.

The deceased was born at Conemaugh. His parents, A. L. and Edna Evey Peters, however, have resided in Centre County for some time and were reared here, being well-known. The father is the owner of the express and dray line, operated by auto truck, between Bellefonte and State College. William was the second child born in the family and was 12 years old on last November 6. Besides his parents, he is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Margaret, Florence, Frank and Kenneth.

Funeral services will be held on Friday at 2 p.m. and burial made in Union cemetery at Bellefonte.

SUNDAY AUTO ACCIDENT

Car Rammed by Another from Shamokin at Street Corner.

Hugh Runkle, wife and family of seven children, who reside on the Runkle farm east of Milesburg, were given a close call on Sunday morning when another car was driven from West Bishop street, around the corner at Spring street, and rammed the Maxwell touring car, driven by Mr. Runkle. Every member of the Runkle family was jolted against the top of the car and landed back in their seats, much frightened but mostly uninjured.

Mrs. Runkle, however, had a severely sprained ankle and her baby daughter, six months old, had its head hurt somewhat in striking the top of the car.

The young men in the Oldsmobile which rammed the Runkle car, said they were from Shamokin and were not sure whether they would go to Pleasant Gap or turn on Spring street, thus getting over farther in the road than they thought they were. They promised to pay damages and seemed to regret what eye witnesses say was an accident that was inexcusable, Mr. Runkle noticed the uncertainty of the driver of the car from Shamokin and kept his car to the extreme right of the road, being unable to get over onto the pavement on account of a telephone pole. The Maxwell car was considerably damaged about the front and was towed to a garage for repairs.

Naturalization Court.

Naturalization court will be held on June 18 at the Court House in Bellefonte.

CHILD'S ABDOMEN TORN BY SHOT IN SAD MISTAKE

Father Loaded Gun for Crows; Tame Pig Caused Accident.

DIED GOING TO HOSPITAL

Martha Bailey, four years old, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Bailey, of Coburn, was the victim in a most lamentable tragedy that occurred at the farm home last Friday. She died on the way to the Bellefonte hospital, remaining conscious until the end came to relieve her of pain, and told of how the accident occurred.

The father had loaded a shot gun and planned to take it to the field with him to kill crows that were troublesome in the corn field. He forgot the gun, however, and it was left standing on a box at the barn. As the little child went to the barn, carrying a small bucket, a pet pig followed her and played about her feet. In its antics, the pig struck the box on which the gun had been placed and the latter fell to the ground, being discharged. The shot struck a nearby concrete wall and rebounded, most of it passing through the bucket carried by the tot and entering her abdomen, the injuries inflicted being of such a serious nature that the physician Dr. C. S. Musser, of Aaronsburg, was immediately summoned and he ordered the child taken to the hospital at Bellefonte but she died upon reaching Old Fort.

Surviving are the parents and two brothers. Burial was made on Tuesday at Millheim.

QUIET NOW AT ROCKVIEW

None of the Prisoners Seriously Injured in Rioting.

All is quiet at Rockview now, according to our latest report, and has been since Sunday, when there was a riot in the enclosure and about forty of the "trusties" were roughly handled but none seriously injured.

Reports that 60, 70 and even 100 prisoners had been so roughly handled that they were, in some instances at least, seriously injured and had to be taken to the prison hospital for treatment, were greatly exaggerated. A few of the prisoners were taken to the hospital, but more to protect them than because of their injuries.

The cause of the rioting has been attributed to several sources, most of which prove to be pretexts, however, for a planned uprising fostered by two carloads of prisoners recently received from the Eastern penitentiary, of Philadelphia.

These prisoners, apparently formed into a clique and, though given better food, more rights and privileges than at a majority of such institutions, complained. A number of the better class of prisoners, known as "trusties," refused to join the clique and this served as an excuse for the starting of the riot, which has only resulted in putting on stricter regulations and lessened privileges to the prisoners.

Looked Back; Car Wrecked.

Frank Seprish, of Yarnell, with a party of young folks on a joy-ride, met with misfortune at the Griffith curve south of Bellefonte on Sunday. It was late in the afternoon and the car was being driven toward Bellefonte. Just after passing the curve, another car from the opposite direction passed the Seprish car and struck a cow. One of the occupants yelled and Seprish turned to look back. In doing so, he lost control and the one rear wheel of his car struck a culvert, smashing the wheel. This caused the auto to swerve and run into the embankment, and into a pile of stone, which wrecked the front of it. The occupants were considerably shaken up, but escaped serious injury.

MUST USE NEW BEE HIVES

Those Using Old Methods Given Time to Change.

Only one month remains in which to transfer bees from box hives, gums, logs, barrels, caps, and other make-shift receptacles to modern movable frame hives in compliance with the Pennsylvania Bee Law of 1921, says Charles N. Greene, chief apiarist of the state department of agriculture.

Beekeepers who have not made the change from the old to the new hives by July 1 will be liable to prosecution and fine. The condemned equipment may also, according to the provisions of the act, "be seized and destroyed without remuneration to the owner."

More than 2 years have elapsed since the passage of the act and the majority of Pennsylvania's beemen have in that time made a complete change by equipping their yards with new modern hives fitted with the approved movable brood frame.

It was the leading beekeepers of the state, in fact, who gave their strongest support to the movable frame feature long before it was made a part of the law of the commonwealth. These same leaders are now equally insistent upon the thorough enforcement of the law because it is a distinct forward step in the control of European and American foulbrood and other bee diseases.

The movable frame, separate as it is from the walls of the hive, permits easy inspection of every comb for the purpose of locating disease that may be present. In the old-style equipment such inspection and examination is not possible.

NEW R. R. SCHEDULE

Pennsy Makes Arrangement for Accommodation of Public.

The new schedule of passenger trains between Tyrone and Grampian, effective June 18, will eliminate 15 former stops, and will be a great convenience to the public. For some time the people in the busy towns along the C. & C., have wanted a service such as this.

The new train will leave Tyrone at 8:05 A. M., with the following stops: Sandy Ridge, 8:46; Osceola Mills, 9:00; Philipsburg, 9:15; Blue Ball, 9:23; Wallaceton, 9:28; Bigler, 9:34; Woodland 9:40; Clearfield (one stop only), 10:00; Curwensville, 10:20; Grampian, 10:35.

Returning it will leave Grampian at 1 o'clock P. M., with the following schedule: Curwensville, 1:12; Clearfield (one stop only), 1:28; Woodland, 1:42; Bigler, 1:49; Wallaceton; 1:56; Blue Ball, 2:00; Philipsburg, 2:10; Osceola Mills, 2:22; Sandy Ridge, 2:35; Tyrone, 3:10. It will make the same connections as heretofore with Main Line trains and the Lehigh Valley Express. In this connection the time of the Moshannon Branch local passenger train has been changed from 9:45 A. M. to 10:10 A. M.

This is but another of the many concessions on the part of the management of the Tyrone Division to give the public everything within reason in keeping with the adequate transportation program by the railroads. Not only this, there has been a decided improvement in every other activity on Tyrone Division in the prompt unloading of cars, tracing of cars, reconsignment of cars, cutting down claims—everything, in fact, that tends to the betterment of the service.

College Men in Lockup.

Two students of the Pennsylvania State College, members of a party of five who were in Lock Haven for Memorial Day, were placed in the lockup in that city for drinking on Wednesday night. They were released last Thursday morning, paying $5 fine each, and joining the others of their party on the return trip to the college. It was said the driver of the car and two others remained sober.

Baby Health Campaign.

A baby health campaign will be held in the Red Cross rooms the week of June 16th. Each church will be given one day and all the mothers of each congregation are requested to come and bring their babies. The babes will be measured and weighed. Lectures will be given by the doctors for the benefit of the mothers.

Clerk—Carrier Examination.

The Civil Service Commission announce that a clerk—carrier examination will be held in the postoffice in Bellefonte on June 8th. For further information, ask at the postoffice.

OVER THE COUNTY

The Civic Improvement club will hold a big country festival at Coburn on the evening of June 16.

Roy Smith, Eugene Gramley and James Sweetwood are Penn's valley boys employed in Lewistown, who are putting pep into Lewistown base ball teams.

Mrs Susan Houseman, of Centre Hall, was very painfully injured when she fell from a bench at the home of her tenant farmer, Frank Hennigh, near Colyer. Her right shoulder was dislocated and several ligaments torn.

Fire destroyed a colony house and 250 chicks at the Hockman poultry farm at Hecla Park. The oil stove became overheated and ignited the colony house. Neighbors formed a bucket brigade and helped Mr. Hockman to keep the flames from spreading to other buildings. His loss was estimated at $100.

Ralph Haines, 46 years old, was run down by an automobile as he was walking along the state road near Millheim on Memorial Day. He was going from his home to that of a neighbor, it is said. He was knocked to the road and one wheel passed over his shoulders. Besides being severely bruised, he sustained a fracture of the left leg above the ankle. He was brought to the Bellefonte hospital and is expected to recover. He said, "The man that was driving the car stopped but I did not get his name."

Linemen placing a heavy voltage wire connection on the transformer, located near the bridge on East Main street, in Millheim, in order to place electric power in Fetterolf's planing mill, shut off the Millheim and Rebersburg lines, but for some reason or other the Centre Hall line still carried its current. Fred Lutz was on the pole and was being assisted by Andrew Gordon from the ground, when the wire Lutz was handling came in contact with the Centre Hall live wire. The contact brought the full 22,000 volts through the new wire that Lutz was holding and the fact that he was strapped to the pole with his safety belt was all that saved him from being hurled to the ground. After several minutes he was able to descend, remarking that "It came pretty near getting me that time." He was taken to Dr. G. S. Frank's office and treated for a severely burned hand and several burns on his body.

Russell Rossman, of Millheim, had his left arm fractured when the blocking under his Ford car, which he was repairing, gave way and his wrist was caught between the frame and fender.

Charles A. Miller, who operates a garage in Millheim, was kept in a dark room several days last week. He got a piece of emery in one of his eyes and it proved very painful but it is believed his sight has not been injured.

Through several real estate transactions recently closed the Grange association has acquired land adjacent to Centre Hall until their park now contains over seventy acres, ideally situated for fair and encampment purposes.

The town square, in Millheim, was the scene of a collision, one day last week when Allen Hess, of Yeagertown, was driving on West Main street with the intention of turning south on Penn street, Arbor Everett, of Bellefonte, was on Penn street intending to turn west on Main street, Hess's car suffered slight damage compared to the condition Everett's car came out of it. Luckily nobody was injured.

Farmers are having difficulty in securing help and are looking forward to the coming of the harvest season, which starts in about three weeks, with some apprehension. Hay-making, harvesting of wheat and oats, is a work that requires extra help during July and August on the big farms and it looks as though the help would be expensive this summer. Industries have been seeking men here and taking them whenever obtainable, paying wages practically beyond the reach of the farmer.

Bees have antics, and a queen bee decided to use the back of a horse to swarm on. The horse was owned by John H. Neidigh and was "parked" on a street in State College, he having come into the town for shopping. When the bees began to swarm on Dobbin's back, he objected with such determination that bystanders feared to assist him in his plight, for he was in intense pain, the bees stinging freely. Finally, Mr. Neidigh swept the bees away with a broom and the horse raced away to a safer section, the queen bees selecting another swarming place. For several days it was feared the many stings might prove fatal to the horse, but it is getting along all right.

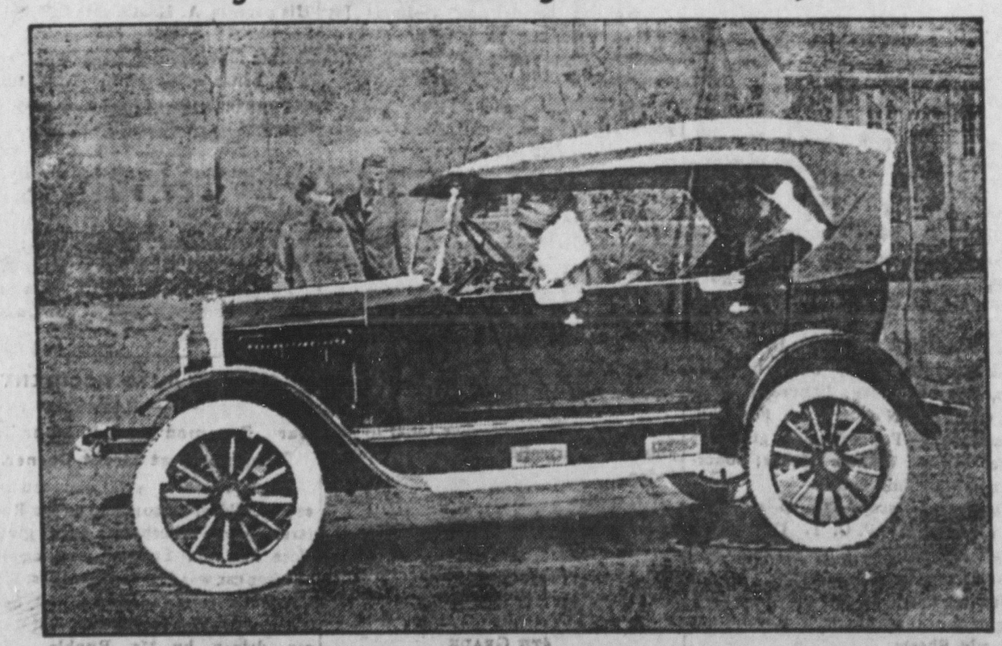
FIRST RED BIRD HERE TOMORROW

R. N. Van Ingen, Local Dealer, Has Sold Three From Catalogue, Purchasers Closing Deal Without Seeing Car, it is so Popular.



THE NEW OVERLAND RED BIRD

The first Red Bird, the new Overland automobile, will reach Bellefonte tomorrow. R. N. VanIngen, the local agent, said, "I have sold three of the cars already. It is so popular I sold them from the catalogue description, the purchasers buying before they had seen the car. I would like to retain the one coming tomorrow for stock and demonstration. There will be plenty of the cars soon, I think, to meet local demands."

Nothing has been omitted from the list of equipment made standard on the New Overland Red Bird, but what is necessary and convenient for the motorist who demands something out of the ordinary and who at the same time does not want to plunge into reckless extravagance in having his ideal satisfied.

Included in the equipment are bumpers front and rear, wind shield wiper, scuff plates, door grips, spare rim and tire carrier, beside the usual dash light, speedometer and other accessories.

Glistening nickeled radiator with bar cap, nickeled head lamps, wind shield stanchions, outside door handles, scuff plates and back curtain window frame are admirably set off by a Khaki top with red bindings and welts.

Red Spanish grained upholstering leaves a pleasant impression when blended with the superb and rich, gleaming Mandalay Maroon, a shade that is exciting much interesting comment, affording to the eye as it does a delightful sense of sprightliness, artistically subdued to a tone of agreeable refinement.

The Red Bird has a roomier body, riding on a lengthened wheel base of 106 inchesand a spring base of 136 inches. This specification alone insures extremely comfortable traveling at all times and under the most adverse conditions. When the patened triplex springs, adopted by Overland engineers are further considered it will be readily understood that restful riding is one of the many outstanding merits of this new car.

Straight side, Fisk cord tires, 30 by 3½ are also standard equipment on the Red Bird enhancing its value to the purchaser and adding to his motoring satisfaction.

The engine is larger and more powerful and in every way adapted to maintain that far-reaching reputation of creditable, economical performance gained by the Overland motor. Speed, flexibility, quick pick-up and low cost operation are established and proven facts.

The Red Bird has a one piece differential case of great strength.

There are no bolts to break loose and no openings for faulty assembly to throw halves out of alignment through dirt or other foreign matter working in between the halves. The design permits of two unusually large differential pinions.

The ring gear is exceptionally large, of the spiral bevel type and with the accurately cut pinion runs smoothly, quietly and without trouble or need of adjustment for many thousand miles of service. Particularly noteworthy is the substantial well assembled, strong rear axles assembly with axle shafts 1½ inches in diameter.

The axles can be removed without dissembling the housing and all the bearing are of the highest types known. These features, together with the many estimable points of excellence in mechanism, single out the Overland Red Bird as deserving of discriminating favor.

DR. STERRETT ENDS LIFE

Native of Howard Had Been Ill for Some Time.

Dr. James McBride Sterrett, who was 76 years old and a native of Howard, this county, shot and killed himself in Washington, D. C., on last Thursday morning. The deceased was a very widely known minister of the Episcopal church and educator, quite well-known in this section.

Mrs. William P. Lucas now owns and resides in the house in Howard, at the diamond, where Dr. Sterrett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sterrett, lived for many years. It has been a number of years since Dr. Sterrett visited Centre County, but his only sister, Miss Minnie Sterrett, of the Olympic apartments, Washington, D. C., visited in Howard 2 years ago, boarding with Mrs. S. I. Reber, and being here for some time. She then stated confidentially to some of her acqusintances, that there was still a vacant place on the Sterrett plot in the Presbyterian cemetery at Jacksonville, where her parents are at rest, and when she passed away, she wanted her remains brought here and burial made in the plot.

Dr. Sterrett was educated in the public schools of Centre County, graduated from Harvard and the Episcopal Theological school at Cambridge, held pastorates at Wellsville, N. Y., and Bedford, Pa., and had been an instructor in the Seabury school in Minnesota and other institutions, as well as a lecturer for the Carnegie Foundation. He was rector emeritus of All Souls church, which he founded, in Washington. He frequently lectured on ethics and philosophy in various institutions over the country and was at one time president of the Society for Philosophical Inquiry.

He was seated on the veranda at the Sterrett home with his wife and members of the family on last Thursday morning. Complaining of being tired, he went to his bedroom upstairs and fired the shot that almost instantly ended his life. He had been in ill health for some time.

FEW 'APOSTLE SPOONS' LEFT

Only Two Complete Sets of Ancient British Plate Are Known to Be in Existence.

The most ancient piece of hall-marked British plate in existence is the spoon.

In the reign of Edward IV, the spoon is mentioned in English literature. Apostle spoons came into fashion during Edward V's time and became very fashionable as christening presents.

Until the time of the commonwealth it became the custom for well-to-do godfathers and godmothers to give a child a complete set of these spoons, or less, according to their means. With the poorer classes the child very often got only one silver spoon, with a figure of his patron saint or that of the giver.

There are only two complete sets of thirteen apostle spoons in existence now. One is owned by the Goldsmith's company and the other is in the possession of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

In both these sets Our Lord is represented, but not Judas Iscariot; his place is taken in one set by Paul and in the other by Matthew.

The oldest hall-marked apostle spoon that is known to be in existence was made in 1493.

It does not seem to be the fashion to present them any more at christenings. The custom dwindled at the time of the Puritans, who were great image-breakers.

PREVENTED CROPS SPELL BIG LOSS

Weather, Pests and Disease Halt United States Production.

AVERAGES 4 BILLION A YEAR

Prevented production aggregated a total average value of $4,230,000,000 yearly in 11 of the country's important crops during the 13 years, 1909 to 1921, the Department of Agriculture estimates. Weather, plant diseases, defective seed and insect and animal pests account for this prevented production.

The corn crop is the chief sufferer, its annual average prevented production being 1,568,879,000 bushels, which at the average December 1 farm prices makes its value $1,256,282,000.

Next in order is the cotton crop, whose prevented production averaged 8,418,000 bales, valued at $882,585,000, including seed.

Wheat follows with an annual averaged damage of 448,762,000 bushels valued at $599,372,000.

The aevrage prevented production and value of other crops are estimated as follows:

Oats, 596,493,000 bushels and value $280,277,000; barley, 108,063,000 bushels, valued at $81,318,000; flaxseed, 11,777,000 bushels, valued at $26,494,000; rice, 11,267,000 bushels, valued at $14,919,000; potatoes, 210,921,000 bushels, valued at $201,849,000; apples, 163,456,000 bushels, valued at $186,946,000; hay, 34,025,000 tons, valued at $576,401,000, and tobacco, 455,729,000 pounds, valued at $80,774,000.

Apple Crop Suffers.

The absolute quantities of crop production prevented by the many and uncertain causes do not indicate the relative severity of the damage to the potential crop. From this point of view the one of these 11 crops that suffers the greatest relative damage is the apple crop, with a yearly damage that averages 47.4 per cent of a potential crop. That is to say, only about one-half of the potential crop of apples, on the average, is actually produced.

The potential flaxseed crop is damaged, on the average, to the extent of 45 per cent, or nearly as much as the apple crop, and the potential cotton crop 40.6 per cent, although in 1921, the damage was as high as 57.4 per cent. In relative damage as well as actual the rice crop is at the bottom of the list with 25.8 per cent, or only one-quarter of the potential production.

Flaxseed leads all of these crops in future uncertainty of production, with a range between high and low damage to the potential crop as great as 51.8 per cent of that crop. Following in order of uncertainty come apples with a range of 35.7 per cent, cotton with a range of 30.5 per cent, barley with 30.1 per cent, hay with 22.8 per cent, oats with 21.1 per cent, corn with 21 per cent, potatoes with 19.2 per cent, wheat and rice each with 17.3 per cent, and tobacco far below with 9.8 per cent. As measures of the uncertainty of the future crop, a range of damage equaling 41.8 per cent of a potential production goes with the flaxseed drop at the highest extreme and 9.8 per cent with the tobacco crop at the lowest. These are ranges for United State averages. Ranges are greater in state averages and in individual farm experience.

Reduction of Acreage.

"If farmers could harvest a potential production," says the Department of Agriculture," they could greatly reduce the acreage now devoted to these eleven crops. The greatest reduction would be one-half for flaxseed, apples and cotton, taking the average of the last two years for cotton. The reduction would be one-third for corn, wheat, oats, barley, potatoes and tobacco, and for two crops—rice and hay—the reduction would be one-quarter.

"Had the potential production been realized on the actual acreage of crops, prices would have been smashed. However, it will not do to say that the farmer has lost an income equivalent to the value of the prevented production based on the price of the harvest production. The fact is that the cost of the efforts to produce that portion of the potential crop which failed is a part of the cost of producing that portion of the crop which succeeded, and the economic necessity is that the farmer shall receive the equivalent of this abortive cost in the price of the crop actually produced."

RESTORES "DEAD" GOLDFISH

Woman Hospital Head Drops It Into a Salt Solution.

Here's a real fish story in which a goldfish was brought back to life after it was found "dead" in the Atlantic City hospital. Miss Nellie McGurran, the superintendent, is fond of pets, her special hobby being goldfish, which adorn the waiting room table of the hospital in an aquarium.

Miss McGurran noticed that one of the fish lay inert on top of the water, apparently dead. Gently lifting the fish out of the water she hastened to the dispensary and, calling one of the resident physicians had him mix a salt solution, into which she dropped the fish. In a few minutes it opened its mouth and started to breathe freely. It was then put on a special diet, furnished by one of the physicians, also a goldfish fancier.

Youngster Battled Burglar.

A fifteen-year-old Ohio boy is recovering from injuries suffered in an encounter with a burglar. Due to the fact that the burglar had whiskers, there was nothing stolen. The boy surprised the man in the kitchen and a fight resulted. The thief struck the boy repeatedly, who grabbed his whiskers and held on until a final blow knocked him unconscious. Then the burglar became frightened and fled. The boy was revived by his dog licking his hands. The dog had given the alarm when the thief first entered.

Not His Time to Die.

Said to have jumped over the East Cliff at Ramsgate, England, at a point where the cliff is 85 feet high, a young soldier of the R. A. F., was committed for trial on a charge of attempting to commit suicide. The youth said he acted in a fit of temper, and that he suffered from the shock of being knocked over by a bomb in 1915. There is no recorded case of any other person, after jumping over the Ramsgate cliffs, remaining alive.

Freak Had Short Life.

Recently a lamb was born in Quebec that was all misformed. The ears were under its neck; its throat outside of the skin and its mouth was like that of a fish. The animal died a few hours after birth.

Must Prove Existence.

A Madrid (Spain) woman is in the singular position of being legally dead until she can prove her existence by discovering the identity of another woman who was buried under her name.

Why Do We Keep Pets?

Many pets are of direct use to us. A dog, for instance, protects our house, a cat catches mice, and so on.

There are, however, two far deeper motives.

A pet satisfies our instinct of ownership and mastery—one of the most profound desires at the back of our minds is to be absolute lord and master, arbiter of life and death. We gratify this wish most thoroughly by possessing a pet animal.

Why We Stop Growing.

We stop growing because certain body cells lose their power to increase in size and to produce other cells. It is one of the marvels of physiology that this is so and a wise provision of nature.

Why Women Fail as Spies.

"Women do not make good spies," said Sir Basil Thompson, former head of the British secret service, speaking at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. "The real reason is that the woman spy gets compunction at just the wrong moment. She has obtained information from some one who should not have given it to her, and then when she should pass it along she feels it would be unfair to her informant and withholds it."

The speaker said that there is the greatest difference between the patriotic spy and the hireling spy. None of the former type was executed by the British during the war, he said, but 11 of the latter, all men, forfeited their lives.—New York Herald.

The Academy cup has been on display in Montgomery and Company clothing store window.

"Y" AUXILIARY PLEASED

Entertainment Made it Possible to Cancel $1,000 Debt.

The concert in the Presbyterian chapel at Bellefonte last Friday evening was a most flattering success. Each of the entertainers appeared to be in especially happy trim and performed accordingly.

The only regret experienced was that the Academy orchestra, having another engagement, had to leave before the audience had a sufficiency of their good music.

Miss Madalene Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Louis Schad, rendered her violin selections with ease in artistic style. It goes without saying that James Parrish pleased; with his fine voice he always delights his hearers.

Miss Rachel Shuey and Miss H. S. Mabie were charming in every sense of the word and Miss Sarah Smith, as a pianist showed fine execution. Irvin Pletcher, of Howard, studying with Mrs. W. R. Krader, won praise and appreciation from everybody. He has a remarkable voice and uses it in a manner that spells future success.

Miss Bullock, of Unionville, also studying under Mrs. Krader, is a coming impersonator. She captivated the audience with her ability as a reader, her interpretation of the selections and her wholesome understanding of what is expected of her.

It was the concensus of opinion that Mrs. Krader displayed her histrionic talent to a very high degree. To quote from those present, "She never did better." The closing number, "Home, Sweet Home," sung by the audience, was most apropo in its suggestion of memories.

The audience though small, because of several other good entertainments, was, in the words of one present, "select and appreciative."

Rev. D. R. Evans, in a few complimentary remarks, made an earnest appeal for the support of the resurrected institution—the Y. M. C. A., which under the untiring energy of Secretary Aplin, is doing so much from an economical viewpoint for our boys and girls.

The Woman's auxiliary desires through this medium to express their gratitude to the board of trustees of the Presbyterian church for the use of the chapel and also its appreciation to the many friends who so generously contributed, thus making it possible for the auxiliary to cancel its debt of $1,000.

FOUND AUTO IN WOODS

Car Stolen at Lock Haven Located Near Philipsburg.

A big Studebaker touring car, found in a woods near Philipsburg, by a young man and reported, proved to be one owned by Huston McKibben, of Lock Haven, who says the car was stolen while he had it parked along the Bald Eagle creek near the ground where a carnival was exhibiting nearby Lock Haven 2 weeks ago.

The car was brought to Bellefonte on Tuesday and Harrison Johnston, deputy sheriff of Clinton County, came here and took it to Lock Haven. It was in need of a few repairs, but otherwise in good condition.

Clayton Watson, a young man taken into custody and since held by the Clinton County authorities at Lock Haven for the theft of the car, was closely questioned as to his whereabouts on the night the car was taken. He stoutly maintained his innocence, saying he had been in Lock Haven, but did not take the car.

Trainmen Watch Bear Cubs.

Trainmen on the Snow Shoe branch of the P. R. R. have been enjoying a very unusual scene for these days along the route, that of watching a mother bear and her two cubs. The bear family is frequently seen and the guests at the Dim Lantern tea room, at Gum Stump, one evening last week saw them. The bears are quite tame and some of the young men are considering the feasibility of capturing the cubs. The trainmen say it has been about ten days since they last saw the cubs and their mother, the leaves being so well developed now that they furnish a shelter which screens the movements of the bears.

Carnival Went to Huntingdon.

The Brooks-Doll post, of the American Legion, received as their share of the carnival proceeds about $650, double the amount realized last year when the Coppings shows were here. This is attributed to two things—the carnival company is bigger, with better attractions, and the pleasure-loving public seemed to have more spending money. While this is only the share secured by the Brooks-Doll post, it gives an emphatic indication of how well the carnival was attended. Nice weather for the entire week also had much to do with the good attendance. From Bellefonte, the carnival went to Huntingdon on Sunday and is showing there this week.

CENTRE COUNTY FIRST

To Aid Penn State, Is Now Over $100,000.

Just as Centre County is now leading all others in the State in support of the Pennsylvania State College emergency building fund for $2,000,000 so did the county lead sixty-five years ago when the first effort was made to raise funds for the college, then "The Farmers' High School."

In this first campaign, when almost $20,000 was received in cash contributions from 785 subscribers, Centre led all others with a total of $8,806.81 from 487 subscribers. At the present time, the Centre County pledges total almost $100,000 more than that early amount, the total to May 16 being $108,408,52. A number of additional pledges in the past two weeks have raised that total considerably.

Residents of fourteen different counties subscribed to the early campaign when a total of $19,568.43 was raised. This was made known when Dr. E. W. Runkle, college librarian, dug into musty records and unearthed the second annual report of "The Farmers' High School" which contained the summary of individual subscriptions. Duphin County stood next to Centre, with $2,035, subscribed by seven persons, while Allegheny County ranked third with $1,880, sent in by eight subscribers. Allegheny stands second in the present drive.

Clinton County stood fourth, contributing $1,645, from 109 subscribers, which is four times the number of Clinton County pledges so far received in the present campaign.

RAINS EXTINGUISHED FIRES

Baffled Fire Fighters and Burned Popular Hunting Ground.

Rains during the weekend extinguished forest fires that baffled for several days the fire fighters and burned over much ground.

One of the most spectacular forest fires in years burned on Nancy mountain above Coleville and especially on the Bald Eagle valley side. It seemed to gain in spite of fighting until the rains.

A bigger fire was that which baffled the fighters and burned over more than 4,000 acres before the rains came and extinguished it. It is now a vast stretch of burned over, charred remnants, devoid of life, lying between the waters of the Moshannon and Bear creeks, near Philipsburg. Strange tales are told by those who helped fight it.

Hemmed in by a wall of flame that roared like a great waterfall as it swept through the dry leaves and undergrowth in the mountains east of Philipsburg, a young fawn timidly submitted to capture by fire-fighters. Fear of the strange element that was eating up sheltering undergrowth and driving the denizens of the forest in panicky flight overcame age-old fear of man. Trembling all over and shaking on its wobbly little legs it was tenderly picked up and carried to safety.

An old pheasant, driven from her nest of eggs by the flames, returned to it after the fire had burned over the section, and in the presence of the strange beings she must have instinctively shrank from at other times, resumed her sitting on eggs that had been baked to the cracking stage.

The fighters were recruited at Philipsburg, Hawk Run, Rush Twp. and at Unionville, Julian and at other points in the Bald Eagle valley.

Starting early in the week it gained headway slowly but surely, the fire wardens being handicapped by lack of men. On Memorial day it became formidable and it was necessary for the wardens to deputize men and boys to assist.

One hunting camp, the property of Hawk Run hunters, was destroyed. In addition to the destruction of young trees and undergrowth which affords shelter and protection to the forest denizens, Fire Warden Johnson expressed the belief the loss of young game had been great. The region has long been regarded as one of the best hunting grounds in the Centre-Clearfield region, deer and smaller game being quite plentiful.

All day Sunday wardens and helpers watched the region, fearing a breeze might again fan hidden bits of fire into flame that would further devastate the region.

NEW AIRPLANE FOR $750

Say Time is Coming When Air Travel Will be Common.

Many folks say the time is not so very distant when the most common method of travel will be via airplane. They advance their ideas and prove them by various theories. There are some folks, however, who say they won't fly even if it does seem safe because only one mishap would likely be fatal. Time will tell.

The other day a Frenchman, George Barbot, introduced to America his small and successful airplane, built at a cost of $1,500, but which he says can be made in large quantities for $750 each.

Barbot said in an interview that he came to the United States to make the airplane as popular as the automobile. He will attempt to demonstrate the practicability and safety of his plane by flying from New York to Chicago.

The craft weighs 600 pounds, is 15 feet feet long and measures 40 feet from wing to wing. Six gallons of gasoline will keep it in the air for 8 hours, traveling at 60 miles an hour.

"Mass production will enable me to produce the flivvers for $750." said Barbot. "The plane I shall fly to Chicago in cost me $1,500, but should a man like your Mr. Ford manufacture my planes they could be delivered for $750.

"In a few weeks I shall have worked out a way to fold up the wings so that the machine can be put in a one-car garage. Seventy-five feet is enough space for taking off and landing."

Barbot declared it would be possible to hop off for the office in the morning and land on the roof of a downtown office building.

"Why not? It is cheaper to fly to work than to ride in a taxi," the aviator said.

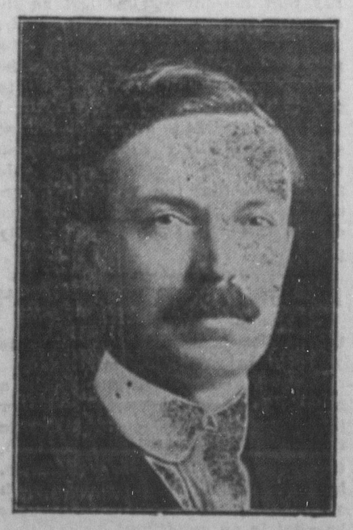
THE NEW WORLD BEGUN---

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE"



There is special significance in the troublous days through which the world has passed since 1914.

Out of these events will come greater developments, involving all nations and peoples.

The Bible accurately foretold present conditions.

Its prophecies regarding the future will be fulfilled with equal exactness.

The outstanding hope held forth in the Scriptures is the hope of eternal life, and the realization of this hope is now at hand.

It will be accompanied by all that the heart has longed for—health, peace and happiness. God's purpose in giving man a revelation of His Plan was that mankind should use it, understand it, and appreciate the principles it sets forth.

An understanding of the Bible broadens one's view, and inspires cheerfulness and optimism. Prophets of old have described with glowing tongue the glories of the bright day that is now dawning.

PLANTING OF TREES

Farmers and Small Timberland Owners Lead.

More than 6,200,000 forest trees were planted by private owners of forest land in Pennsylvania during the spring of 1923, according to an announcement made by Major R. Y. Stuart, the state's chief foresterer. This is the largest number of trees that have been planted on privately-owned forest land in any one year in the history of the state. This number of trees will reforest about 6,000 acres of land that would otherwise remain idle.

Forest trees were planted this spring in every county in the state. Twenty-seven different owners of forest land planted a total of 400,000 trees.

The 1,600 private planters that set out trees this spring included farmers, lumbermen, water companies, mining companies, municipalities and other organizations interested in forest tree planting. The mining companies planted 1,140,000 trees, water companies 675,000 and municipalities over 550,000. The remaining 3,350,000 trees were planted by small timberland owners scattered over the state.

Major Stuart states that he is impressed with the way forest tree planting is progressing. During the last 15 years more than 25,000,000 trees, grown in the nurseries of the department of forestry were set out on privately-owned land and during the last 20 years about 35,000,000 trees were planted on the state forests. Applications for more than 1,000 000 trees have already been filed with the department of forestry for trees to be planted during the spring of 1924. According to present plans, the total annual output of the Department of Forestry nurseries will be 20,000,000 by 1925.

SAVED MONOPOLY IN PIPES

Clever Trick Credited to Dutch Traders Who Had No Desire to Lose Lucrative Business.

There is a story to the effect that once the Dutch had a profitable monopoly in the manufacture of smoking pipes. Flanders, in a desire to cultivate craftsmanship for economic reasons, decided to make pipes, too, and quit sending money to Holland for such articles. In that way, it was planned, Flanders could not only keep Flanders money at home, but the country could sell its pipes to other people at a profit.

So the manufacture of pipes began. Seeing what this competition might lead to, the Dutch said: "We will sell our pipes at a loss in Flanders until this upstart industry shall have been ruined. Then we can raise the price higher than before." To this the people of Flanders retorted by laying a prohibitive tax upon Dutch pipes, to keep them out. Thereupon the Dutch loaded a ship with pipes, sailed it over to the coast of Flanders, and wrecked it there. It was salvaged, of course, and the people of Flanders got a shipload of pipes for nothing. For the next two or three years pipes were so ruinously cheap in Flanders that the new industry perished.

Thus the Dutch, by sacrificing one shipload of pipes, saved their monopoly.

FIRMLY BELIEVE IN "SPIRITS"

Odd Superstition That Prevails Among the Inhabitants of the Island of Luzon.

During the life of a person in Luzon his spirit is called Tako. After death it receives a new name. It is believed to go about in a body invisible to the eye of man, yet unchanged in appearance from the living person. If a man becomes unconscious, the natives think a vengeful spirit has lured away the soul of the sick man and they hold the ceremony of "Calling Back the Soul." Then they hold a big feast, to which they invite all the spirits in order to induce them to bring back the sick man's soul.

One is "insupak" when the spirits have made themselves known to him in a dream. He thereby declares himself to be "insupak," and as no one can prove he has not received a message from the dead he becomes a full-fledged medium. A pronged spear is supposed to protect the people from the evil-vengeful Anito, or evil spirits, who are always waiting to trip one up on the trail, to cause him to fall and hurt himself or to kill him. When a native walks alone on a mountain trail and feels his hair creeping on his scalp he knows of the Anito's presence.

Proved His Capacity.

Jefferson Boyce enjoyed a local reputation as an eater of no mean dimensions, and on numerous occasions had won wagers on his capacity and endurance. One day a friend offered to bet that he could not down 36 doughnuts at one sitting. "Never tested my ability on doughnuts," said Jeff, "but I'll just take that chance to the extent of $5. Stakes were put up and the contest was scheduled to take place at Pete's Original Coffee house at 6 p. m. About five o'clock Jeff hunted up his challenger. "Say, you don't want to make that bet $20?" he queried. "Huh! You must think you've got a hunch on this!" "That's what I have," rejoined Jeff; "I've just got through making a test."

Palm Two Centuries Old.

Set out by the Jesuit missionaries in 1720, thousands of date palms in Lower California are still producing quantities of high-class fruit, approximately 2¼ million pounds being shipped to all parts of Mexico each year. Small groves of date palms may also be found in many communities of the state of Sonora, where water is available, at Guaymas there being an old date palm tree that has produced as high as 1,000 pounds of dates in one season.

Most of the Mexican date crops are handled by Chinese merchants and the bulk is shipped to points in Sonora and Sinaloa.

CORSICAN BANDIT GREETS TOURISTS

Entertains Them Cordially in His Mountain Retreat and Then Returns Call.

DENIES RANSOM STORY

Visits Hotel and Orders Up Champagne for Guests, Insists on Their Drinking It and Leaves Them Befuddled.

Paris.—Napoleon Romanetti, who in recent days has enjoyed great vogue in the Corsican woods, has protested indignantly against misrepresentations by a group of tourists. Returning to Paris from a tour of the islands, a party of French and Americans pictured him as a bandit of the old Corsican type and described how he "shot up" the town of Vizzanova. The tourists said that he demanded a heavy ransom from all the guests of the leading hotels.

Romanetti admits certain differences between himself and the gendarmes. These differences, he says, make the air of the brush more salubrious than the air of the town, but it is a matter between himself and the gendarmes. As for shooting up the hotel and ransoming the guests, here is his version of the affair.

Greets Them Cordially.

A party of tourists, climbing the mountain on muleback, stumbled upon his retreat. He greeted them politely and entertained them so cordially that the tourists invited him to return their call at their hotel. Romanetti, the following evening, like a true modern, self-respecting bandit, drove his high-powered car to the town and placed sentinels about the town before making his entry. This action spread consternation throughout. It was not until Romanetti assured the guests that there was no danger that they were quieted. He then proceeded to inspire the hotelkeeper with the proper idea of Corsican hospitality.

"A bottle of champagne for every guest," he shouted, giving his order. Every guest was obliged to drink his or her bottle. A second bottle for each one followed with the same injunction. It was 2:30 in the morning when Romanetti sought the mountains again, leaving the guests, according to his own story, in such a state that they could not give clear evidence of what had occurred.

A Second Bottle Followed for Each.

"It was the champagne," he remarked. "It was all champagne, that ransom story."

Girl Stricken Blind in Automobile Accident Recovers Sight as Quickly as She Lost It.

Philadelphia.—Miss Margaret Wisler has recovered her sight after ten days' blindness, which doctors had feared would be permanent. She was stricken blind in an automobile accident and recovered her sight almost as quickly as she lost it.

Miss Wisler was riding with John Smith in the latter's automobile. He was teaching her to drive and she had the steering wheel when another machine approached headed straight for them. The frightened girl swerved the machine as quickly as she could to one side. They avoided a collision by inches.

"There was a sudden flash in front of my eyes," said the girl, describing her experience. "I had never been so frightened before. After the flash everything went dark for a moment. Then the flash came again and then all was dark again. I could see nothing."

APRIL'S LUCK

"Well," said April, "I most certainly do have luck."

"Now what is it, April?" asked Billie Brownie.

"Well," said April once more, "you know March just has the most dreadful time. March is complained about. Dreadful things are said to March and of March and about March.

"It's a wonder to me March is as good as March is when March is talked about so.

"I know I wouldn't be so good. And as March has said it isn't March's fault when Spring and Winter will meet in March and will talk.

"Spring gets excited and talks much longer than any one fancied Spring would talk, and people want to change and put on thinner things, and then Winter begins to say something, and it becomes colder as Winter talks, for Winter's voice is very chilly.

"Then people say:

"'Ah, it is well not to change in March.'

"They call March treacherous. They say no one can depend upon March. Yes, they say all the things that really are quite dreadful.

"Of course, it is true that March isn't the month in which to take any chances with one's clothes, but then it isn't March's fault when Winter and Spring get so excited.

"But this is the joke, Billie Brownie."

"Tell it to me," said Billie Brownie. "I am eager to hear it."

"You know it hasn't been so very nice since I've been here. The first day it rained so hard and the next day it was cold and cheerless.

"Now some one who doesn't mind March so much, for March has a few friends, said to a friend who disliked March:

"You Are Lucky," Agreed Billie.

"'Now, if this were March, I suppose you'd say it was just like March.'

"'What can you say now that it is April?'

And this friend replied:

"'Why, don't you know that April always borrows twelve days of March? Of course, and this is one of the days.'

"You will always find that there are about twelve days in April which are far from being nice, and they are the days April borrows of March.

"'That is an old, old, old saying, and a very true one.'

"Well, when I heard that I did have to congratulate myself on my luck," April continued.

"I should say you are lucky," agreed Billie Brownie. "Such luck I never heard of before or since."

"And," said April, "it makes it so very convenient and nice, for if I feel cross and if I lose my temper and act badly, no one blames me, but only March gets the blame.

"Of course, I don't like to see March get the blame for everything, and yet I do have to smile at my luck, my amazing luck."

And then April sang this song while Billie Brownie joined in the chorus after April recited the chorus to him, so he'd be able to sing all the words.

This was the song April sang:

"April is a month of spring,
April with it pleasures bring.
April gets just lots of praise
On every one of April's good days."

Then Billie Brownie joined in the chorus which went like this:

"Heigh-ho, heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
April seldom has snow,
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
Often with warmth April will glow.
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
In April flowers start in to grow.
April's the luck month."

And then once more April sang alone, and this was the song April sang:

"April's gay and happy,
April's air is snappy,
April's air is also warm,
April will never do you harm,
And if April comes a bad day,
April's not blamed for being that way."

And then once more April repeated the chorus while Billie Brownie joined in.

Bright Lad.

A tire company in Indianapolis was giving away toy balloons to children, and one little fellow asked if he might have two.

"Sorry," said the man in charge, "but we only give one balloon to each boy. Have you a brother at home?"

"No," replied the truthful youngster, "but my sister has, and I want it for him."

When Horse's Nose Itches?

Little Robert—Mamma, does a horse use his front feet for hands?

Mamma—Of course not, dear.

Little Robert—Then what does he do when his nose itches?

WHY

Proper Study of Insect Life Is Important.

How far can flies travel, and what determines the direction of their flight? They have occasionally been reported may miles offshore; but in such instances it may have been the winds rather than their wings that were responsible for the long-distance transport. In the course of a series of investigations of insects affecting the health of man and animals, the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture has sought definite knowledge regarding the question just raised. Thousands upon thousands of marked flies, notably the common house fly, screw-worm fly and the black blow fly, have been liberated, so as to ascertain the direction and speed of their travel. The maximum distance or speed from the point of release as recorded for the common house fly was 13.1 miles. The dispersion was in all directions from the point of liberation.

Modern progress in medicine has shown again and again how important a knowledge of the habits of insects is for human welfare in general and many public health problems in particular.

It is obviously futile to plan anti-fly or anti-mosquito campaigns with reference to small localities if the insects concerned can readily be disseminated from far beyond the boundaries of the places under control. Efforts to eliminate insect breeding places in order to relieve a particular region may be entirely nullified if neighboring breeding grounds are near enough to keep up the supply of the offending insect.

GUIDE SEARCHERS FOR HONEY

Why Some Flowers Have Far Greater Attractions for Bees Than Others of Like Species.

Do flowers use rays not visible to the human eye to attract insects to them? Certain insects can spot ultra-violet light that cannot be seen by man, and some blossoms, in addition to their ordinary brilliant hues, vary in the kind of short light rays that they emit.

Prof. F. K. Richtemeyer of Cornell university told the Optical Society of America, meeting at the bureau of standards in Washington recently, that these invisible rays may guide pollen-bearing insects to the flowers in their search for honey. Giving signals in rays shorter than the deepest violet that we can see brings the flowers the pollen that is necessary to it in producing seed. Experiments made by Professor Richtmeyer on Colorado flowers show that flowers apparently differ in their reflection of ultra-violet as much as in their visible colors.—Cleveland News-Leader.

How Game Is Being Exterminated.

A Loucheux Indian, trapping east of Macpherson, on the Arctic coast, caught 120 white foxes last winter, besides other game, which he shot or found in his fox traps. The foxes alone netted him $4,200, while a white trapper, C. Norberg, trapping at Baillie island in the Arctic, came out with a catch of white foxes valued at $15,000. Charles Klinkenberg, a Dane, who has lived in the Arctic for 40 years, takes in 1,000 white fox pelts at this trading post yearly, and as white foxes are fashionable, and have increased in value from $10 to $50 within three years, the Arctic fox will soon be as scarce as the sable and sea otter.

Why He Missed the Train.

A certain absent-minded Stanford professor lived in the country and each day he commuted to the university, riding to and from the railroad station on his bicycle.

One afternoon, when his classes were finished, he started home, but being engrossed in deep thought, he forgot to mount his bicycle and walked to the station, a mile away, pushing it along at his side.

Arriving at the station he saw his train just pulling away from the platform.

"How exasperating," he exclaimed. "Had I not been bothered with this confounded bicycle I could have caught that train!"—Judge.

Why They Sympathized.

"The American boy is all right, after all," remarked the man who Sunday tried his skates for the first time after a long illness. He had been a good skater, but now was slow and awkward. A half dozen boys tore down the pond and stopped in front of him. "Just learning, mister?" asked one at the top of his voice. "Been sick," he replied. The boys held a consultation and offered to contribute their combined experience to help him learn to skate again. When the boys found out that his illness was caused by injuries suffered in France, in the World war, they held up instruction until they heard the story.—Detroit Free Press.

Flies Ninety Miles Without Pilot.

The pilotless airplane, with which the army air service has been experimenting for some months, recently made a number of successful flights of more than 90 miles. The automatic control, consisting of a gyroscope and an arrangement of bellows similar to those used in piano players, is said to be more accurate and dependable than a human pilot. The tests proved it was possible to drop bombs from this plane, on targets on or off the ground, with great accuracy.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

On the sun-dial in the garden
The great sun keeps the time;
A faint, small, moving shadow,
And we know the worlds are in rime;
And if once that shadow should falter
By the space of a child's eyelash,
The seas would devour the mountains,
And the stars together would crash.

DISHES FROM STALE BREAD

Leftover bread is like the poor, always with us. The cut slices of bread need not be considered, as they may be used to make dry toast, milk toast, or French toast and are always an agreeable dish for any breakfast or luncheon.

Small bits of bread rolled or dried and put through the meat grinder may be used in countless ways.

As stuffing for green peppers, fowls of all kinds, roast pork, veal breast and spareribs roasts, bread crumbs are indispensable.

Bread Fritters.—Cut stale bread into thin slices, shape with a biscuit cutter, spread with jam, dip in the following batter after putting the slices together as sandwiches:

Sift one cupful of bread flour with one tablespoonful of powdered sugar and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, add two-thirds of a cupful of milk, gradually, and two well-beaten egg yolks. Add one tablespoonful of olive oil and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Dip and fry in deep fat.

Toasted bread for garnishing, for croutons, for soup and for canapes will be useful ways of using stale bread.

Bread Pudding.—Spread slices of stale bread, or broken bits may be dotted with butter, cover with stewed or fresh rhubarb well-sweetened, and bake until the bread is softened. Serve with cream and sugar. Any stewed or canned fruit may be used for this pudding.

Fried oysters rolled in crumbs seasoned with salt and pepper and fried in butter make a good supper dish. Cracker crumbs are fully as good.

For all escalloped dishes a nice top of buttered crumbs adds to the appearance as well as the palatability.

Large onions may be cooked until partly tender and stuffed with seasoned meat, sausage and bread crumbs for filling. Bake, basting with butter and water until the onions are perfectly tender.

HOME-MADE CANDIES

The candy made at home is always much cheaper and usually more wholesome than that bought in the shops.

Butter Scotch.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, two tablespoonfuls of water, a tablespoonful of butter and boil without stirring until it hardens in the spoon. Pour out on flat buttered plates and when cool mark in squares.

Candied Popcorn.—Boil one cupful of pulverized sugar, three tablespoonfuls of water, and one tablespoonful of butter until it is just ready to grain; add three quarts of nicely popped corn, stir until the kernels are coated.

Molasses Candy.—To one and one-half pounds of sugar add one cupful of molasses, one cupful of water, and one-fourth cupful of vinegar. Boil until a hard ball may be formed in cold water, add one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar as soon as the boiling commences. When almost done add one-half cupful of butter and one-fourth teaspoonful of soda. Pour out to cool, then pull.

Sultana Caramels.—Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of milk, one-fourth cupful of molasses, and heat to the boiling point and boil seven minutes. Add two squares of unsweetened chocolate and stir until melted, then boil seven minutes longer, add one cupful of chopped nuts and two tablespoonfuls of chopped raisins. Beat until creamy. Pour out and mark in squares.

Ice Cream Candy.—Mix three cupfuls of granulated sugar with one-half cupful of vinegar and one and one-half cupfuls of cold water and a tablespoonful of butter. Boil to a hard ball, then pull when cool.

Coconut Candy.—Take powdered sugar, using a cupful; add a tablespoonful of softened butter and cream it well into the sugar; add coffee, a few drops at a time, mixing well, until the sugar is creamy; stir in a cupful of coconut and drop by spoonfuls on a buttered paper.

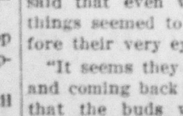
THE FIRST FLY

"I am really not appreciated as I should be," said the first house fly to the window-pane.



"The First Butterfly."

The window-pane paid no attention to the fly's remark. The window-pane wasn't in the habit of answering back.

To be sure the fly was walking all over the window-pane and the window-pane might have objected. But the window-pane made not a sound.

It might be walked over and still it wouldn't complain of such treatment.

"Whether you agree or disagree," the fly continued, "I spoke the truth."

The window-pane still was quiet.

"I suppose," the fly went on, "you agree with me because you do not contradict me.

"Well, I don't think so much of your opinion. You can't even wash your own face. A helpless sort of a thing you are.

"You should be old enough to do better than that. Yes, you really should.

"Still I think people are very rude.

"The family in this house came home today and they raved about all they had seen. They spoke of the feathery delicacy of the willow trees which were just coming out.

"They spoke of the first butterfly they had seen and of the first bumble bee.

"They spoke of the lovely warm air and of the soft breeze and of the buds opening upon the trees. They said that even while they were out things seemed to open up almost before their very eyes.

"It seems they had been for a ride, and coming back they were quite sure that the buds were further opened than they had been when they had started out.

"And all of this pleased them very much indeed. They said in some gardens and parks and along some roads things were further out than along others.

"This all interested them very much. Then I began buzzing about. I crawled up the window pane—up you, my silent friend—and then I crawled down.

"I flew about a little and then I did some fine tricks. I brushed my legs and wings and wiped off my face—using my legs to assist me with my face.

"I thought I would be greatly admired for all this.

"And yet I was not noticed. But before long someone noticed me.

"'The first fly,' the person said.

"'Oh, dear,' said another. At first I thought the second person was speaking to me or of me affectionately. It was nice to be called 'dear.' I had never been called that before.

"I twisted my right leg over my head and then twisted it back again—a very superior trick and by that time I thought I'd be called 'darling' or 'dearest' or 'little sweetheart.'

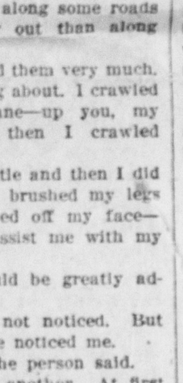
"But not a bit of that.

"The person who had said 'Oh, dear,' had meant:

"'Oh, dear! how horrid to see a fly. A fly is one of the things we don't like to see brought along by the warm weather.'

"I was glad that that warm weather brought me. I felt glad that I made the people displeased. All my mean fly feelings came over me which have been handed down to me from my grandfather and grandmother flies and from their grandfather and grandmother flies before them.

"I do not know whether it is necessary to add 'before them.' I don't suppose grandfathers and grandmothers ever come after one. But they might! There's no telling.



"The First Fly."

"Anyway, it shows how I am not appreciated. They seem to like all the other 'first things,' but not the first fly.

"Oh, well, I don't mind. My fly heart will not be broken!

"Ah, I believe they're going to get the swatter after me. Well, if they can catch me it's fair enough. Only I don't want to be tortured. One good swat I don't mind.

"My fly life may be long or short. It doesn't matter to me. And I suppose it does matter to them, as I do spread disease. Disease and I are friends. Disease has been a family friend for years. Shows what we are, I suppose, and why we're not appreciated. There, I'm being swatted now. Good-by, window-pane."

But the window pane never answered. The window-pane was noted for being very quiet.

HOW

YELLOWED PIANO KEYS MAY BE MADE SIGHTLY.—There is nothing more unsightly than to have the white ivory keys on a piano turn yellow in spots, which is due to perspiration of the fingers in the summer time and to a slight oiliness of them in winter. An experimenter claims that he has found that the original whiteness can be restored by using a weak solution of nitric acid and water, says the New York World. Put one ounce of nitric acid and 12 ounces of soft or distilled water in a bottle having a rubber cork. If the latter is not handy, an ordinary cork dipped into melted paraffin wax will do.

Be sure to pour the acid very slowly into the water and stir it with a stick. Do not reverse this proceeding or the acid will fly up into your eyes. In using this solution, pour a little of it into a glass dish; then dip a brush into the liquid, wiping off the surplus on the edge of the dish.

If no brush is handy, tie a piece of cheesecloth on a stick and use that; in fact, cloth on a stick makes a very good brush for this work. Apply the solution sparingly to the stained keys, taking care that no acid get on the black keys or woodwork. Then rub the surface lightly with a piece of cheesecloth to remove the stain. Next wash off all acid with a piece of flannel dipped in clear water and wipe with a dry cloth.

CLING TO PRIMITIVE CUSTOM

How the Modern Arab Takes His Coffee, as Told by American Consular Official.

Coffee houses in Aden are crowded day and night, says Consul Raymond Davis in response to an inquiry from the Department of Commerce on the market for percolators, but they have shown no improvement in the methods of preparing cups that cheer but do not inebriate.

The Arabian method of coffee making, as described by the consul, requires the use of small clay mugs, made locally, which cost 6 to 12 annas each. In one corner of the shop a charcoal fire is kept burning and on it are placed the mugs containing water, powdered coffee and sometimes a little ginger and sugar to be brought to a boil. As soon as it comes to a boil the coffee is consumed, with or without sugar, and always without milk. The coffee-house price is one-half anna a mug. Patrons seem to be satisfied with this primitive method, and cafe proprietors say it would cause too much trouble and take too much time to familiarize the servants with the modern coffee machine.

How Temperature Affects Fish.

Fish are very quick to feel a change of temperature in their native element, and sudden cooling or heating of the water is very injurious to them.

A hot summer has been known to drive herring to find cooler waters at a distance. Some years ago a fearful storm raged along the eastern coast of North America. After it had subsided the sea was strewn with millions of tile, a fish like a cod, but attaining a weight of 50 pounds or more. A vessel was sent to discover the cause of the strange phenomenon. It plowed straight ahead for 150 miles and estimated that an area of 5,000 square miles was covered with dead fish. It was discovered that the storm had brought icebergs in its train, and the consequent great cold had proved too much for the fish, accustomed as they were to warmer waters. The cod has an objection to sudden changes of climate, and if put in colder water than that to which he is accustomed will be numbed. Experiments have been tried to acclimatize English salmon in Tasmania, but the difference in temperature has caused these experiments to fail.

How Fuel Supply May Be Increased.

Researches have been made in France with respect to the use of grape pommace as fuel. Moreover, attention has been invited to various kinds of material that might be used in this way to a good advantage, and the calorific power of which possesses considerable value. It has been found that grape pommace, when well dried, is an excellent fuel and has a good heating quality. In the researches mentioned, it was demonstrated that the substance dried at 115 degrees centigrade shows 4,400 calories.

It is also shown that as this substance has much resemblance to dried peat, it can be used in suitable producer gases, and it has an advantage over peat in that it can be dried rapidly. Combustion allows of recovering most of the phosphorus compounds and potash contained in the ash, and only the nitrogen is lost. A ton of well dried pommace has the same heat value as 0.4 ton of coal. By this estimate the annual wine production in France of 1,250,000,000 gallons represents at least 175,000 tons of coal, so that the interest of this application is considerable. Pommace of other fruits could no doubt be employed.

WILL PUT UP SIGNS

Councilmen Decide to Have Speed Laws Obeyed.

At the regular meeting of Council on Monday evening it was decided to properly place signs, regulating speed of automobiles within the borough limits as required by law.

There was a lively discussion of the policing of the town. This came before the members of Council as a result of the resignation of George Smith and applications to fill the vacancy from two others—John Geisinger and John Garis. It was finally decided to refer the appointment to Burgess W. Harrison Walker and John Garis went on duty on Tuesday.

S. D. Gettig Esq., was present to ask consideration from Council relating to the matter of a parcel of ground which it was desired to purchase from the Borough, as brought out in Council meeting about two months ago, by the United Evangelical church. Mr. Gettig was present this time to ask that permission, at least, be given to use the ground at present for storage purposes as this would aid them much in their proposed building operations, which it is proposed to start within 10 days. The matter was referred to the water committee.

A petition, signed by nearly all owners and tenants of South Allegheny St., was presented, asking that Council consider the urgent need of repairs on what is more familiarly known as Reservoir Hill, it being pointed out that the street has been neglected to such an extent that it is filled with loose stone and is badly washed, surface drainage not being cared for. This was referred to the state committee and borough manager.

A letter from the bureau of statistics, at Harrisburg, was read and the contents were to inquire about delay in sending in a required report from the Borough. The matter was referred to the water committee, to consult with the borough solicitor.

A petition from residents of South Spring St. was read, asking that a fire plug be placed near the residence of Abe Bailey, in order to give better and adequate fire protection. The matter was referred to the water committee.

[illegible] reported repairs, including Mill and South Thomas Sts. There was also a proposition from the state highway department to go 50-50 in oiling and re-surfacing that portion of the state road in Bellefonte, on Bishop, Allegheny and Linn Sts. and this was considered favorably, being accepted. Collections of $10 were reported.

The water committee reported collections of $12.

The fire and police committee then reported the resignation of George Smith and the discussion followed.

The finance committee reported notes due and asked for renewal and interest.

The question of permitting a drayman to park on North Spring St. near the Valentine property was brought up and referred to the borough solicitor to ascertain what action to take.

The Boy Scouts of town plan to hold an ice cream festival on Tuesday evening, June 26. The public will undoubtedly support this undertaking of this great patriotic and character-forming organization for boys. The proceeds will help to give every Scout two weeks in camp. The summer camp is one of the biggest items in building up the boys according to the scouting program.

Mill Hall Defeated Snow Shoe

The Snow Shoe base ball nine was surprised at the speed of the Mill Hall aggregation on Saturday and had to return home without the bacon this time, the score being 13—7 in favor of Mill Hall.
